Hi Erik,

The schools currently serving that location have sufficient capacity to accommodate the potential new students generated by the development and would continue to do so even with up to 264 dwelling units. Based on this review, we do not have concerns at this time. Please let us know when the applicant has a final proposed total unit count.

Xavier,

I reviewed the document you shared about two weeks ago and I see that the three schools that would serve the proposed PUD are currently under 100% capacity.

I am reaching out to confirm whether or not MCPS has any objections/concerns to the proposed total of 176 single-family homes, or to the maximum allowed under the High Residential future land use designation (4–8 du/ac), which would be 264 dwelling units.

Thank you,

Erik Kramer

Gentlemen,

This is the only application that increases residential uses this round. This zoning change is asking to go from R-1, Single Family Dwelling, to PUD, Planned Unit Development. The total units proposed is 176 Single family homes. By Land Use, the max they could ask for is 264 dwelling units. Please have all comments back by January 2, 2026.
